MULE HAS HANDLED 100,000 BARRELS RUM

Beck, grey mule, 28, credited with having pulley-lifted 100,000 barrels to ricks at the M. M. Dowling distillery, at Lawrenceburg, is to be retired because there are no more barrels to be ricked. She has claimed local note for reasons other than that she has handled more whisky probably than any living animal. For years before prohibition she was known for two marked eccentricities. When the whistle would blow for dinner, Beck would stop dead in her tracks, and wouldn't pull a pound more until fed. Then the whistle stopped, but the mule showed every day the superhuman sense of knowledge when twelve o'clock came and continued to stop short. Another eccentricity is that she has never abided a driver. A plank is placed at the point she is to stop, and when she reaches it she braces for the tow-over, and then obeys the command to "ease up." Beck believes in a short day and it is said that her remarkable automatic service ends as abruptly and as stubbornly at 5 o'clock as it pauses at noon.

PROTECTION PROMISED LOYAL GROWERS

Assurance of protection to the loyal members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association from contract breakers, warehouse men encouraging contract breakers and from other forces, was given the tobacco growers of Shelby county Saturday, in an address by James C. Stone, president and general manager of the Burley Association, who spoke to a large crowd at the court house in Shelbyville.

President Stone also rendered an account of stewardship on the part of the officials of the association. He declared that but for the formation of the association they would have received probably no more for their crop last year than they received for their crop of 1920, said that most of the outside growers admitted that this was true, and urged them all to "be good sports now and some on into the association and let's make it unanimous."

PARIS PLAYER LEADS IN BATTING HONORS

To Maples, right fielder of the Paris Mammoth, one of the late arrivals in the Blue Grass League, falls the nominal leadership in the batting average leadership in the batting average column for the season. The Paris clean-up man closed the season with a percentage of .326 in seventeen games. Hod Eller, Mt. Sterling manager, for thirteen games, was runner-up with an average of .413.

For players who went through the whole season from April to October, however, Class, the Maysville star, grabbed the highest honors with a percentage of .333. Class was the slugging star of the season, leading the league in home runs, triples, total bases and runs. He had 14 circuit clouts to his credit and his 79 hits amounted to 150 total bases. Harry Bell, first of Maysville and then of Winchester, finished the year with a remarkable hitting streak and closed with a mark of .329 in the last few days to his credit.

Rorer, of Cynthiana, played in more games than any other player in the league—65—missing only one contest during the year, and finished with an average of .318. He had 261 times at bat, heading this column, and also leading in hits.

Deveraux, whose hectic career took him into the line-ups of three clubs, led in stolen bases, with a total of 23. He was easily the best baserunner in the league, scoring 56 runs, one for each game. Class scored 58 times, also one run for each game.

Charley Ellis, veteran of a Blue Grass League which was somewhat more peaceful, at least than this one, led in two-base hits with seventeen and was runner-up in home runs with nine.

CLASSICAL ASSOCIATION MEETS HERE IN 1923

The Classical Association of Kentucky, under whose auspices the Kentucky Latin tournament is annually held, officially notified the Paris High School that the association had accepted the invitation offered by the Paris High School for the 1923 meeting of the tournament. This tournament is one of the most important educational meetings held in Kentucky next year. Representatives from all the larger High Schools in the State will be here. Miss Lucille Harbold, head of the department of Latin, will have charge of the arrangements for the meeting. Mr. Harold Harris, Secretary of the Commercial Club, will plan some special features of entertainment for this group of Kentucky students.

The "Parisian Oracle," a paper published by the Paris High School Latin club, will issue a special issue to be known as the "Tournament Edition."

The date for the 1923 tournament has been set for Friday, May 11, and Saturday, May 12.

LOCAL MOVIE HOUSES TO HAVE GOOD BILLS

Lila Lee and Lois Wilson, two of the most prominent screen leading women, again do excellent team work in the cast of "Is Matrimony a Failure?" a new Paramount special comedy directed by James Cruze, showing at the Alamo and Grand this (Tuesday) afternoon and night.

Misses Wilson and Lee have each played many notable leads, opposite Paramount stars, such as Wallace Reid, Thomas Meighan, Jack Holt, and others, and have appeared to advantage in several all-star productions of Cecil B. deMille, William deMille and other producers. This is not the first time that the two leading women have worked together in the same picture. They will be recalled as the two wives in William deMille's production, "Midsummer Madness."

A story straight from the heart of eternal motherhood is "The Grim Comedian," Goldwin's production of Rita Weiman's first screen story, which comes to the Alamo and the Grand to-morrow (Wednesday) afternoon and evening. It will awaken an answering chord in the heart of every person who sees it, man, woman or child. Phoebe Hunt and Jack Holt have the leading roles.

Vera Gordon and Dore Davidson again play a Jewish mother and father in another Fannie Hurst story "The Good Provider," which will be seen Thursday afternoon and evening at the Alamo and Grand. This new photoplay tells the story of a father who strives, always uncomplaining, to bring happiness to his family. It makes clear how often the father is misunderstood, but as Mr. Borzage has directed it, Papa Binswanger's career is developed to the accompaniment of many hearty laughs.

Others in the splendid cast are: Miriam Battista, Vivienne Osborne, William (Buster) Collier, Jr., and John Roche.
